San Francisco Conditions Continue To Improve
Daily--Money Now Possible.

PERMANENT CAMPS ESTABLISHED

Troops Still In Charge, But Planing Mills Can Run, And City-Takes On Air Of Business And Is Rebuilding.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
San Francisco, Calif., April 26.—The city is this morning assuming somewhat more of a business air. "Bankers Row" has been established on the Golden Gate Square and huge banners are strung on private residences announcing that such and such a bank is open for business. The discovery that the vaults containing the money and books of the wrecked banks were safe has added to the sense of security.

Clearing House Acts
The clearing house has decided to allow all depositors to draw four hundred dollars of their deposits from near the Presidio. For the first time since the quake the electric lights burned in the streets last night.

Last Night's Scare.
The earthquake shock that toppled over the frames of the wrecked buildings, last night and frightened thousands, are forgotten this morning. The buildings knocked down would all have to have been wrecked, and this work saved. Of course thousands are leaving Frisco every day but the number is steadily growing less and less.

Sixteen Thousand.
At the Presidio sixteen thousand are being cared for in tents. The the savings banks' funds, and the hundreds of depositors are taking advantage of this order and supplying themselves with money to buy necessities. All the vaults in the Savings Banks were found in most excellent condition.

Planing Mills Working
Fifteen out of the thirty-nine planing mills which were along the wharves are found to have been saved and two of them began operations this morning. The water-front shows more business than any day since the fire and sanitary conditions of the camp are excellent and there are no cases of contagious disease reported. The coroner has finished his task of removing the bodies buried in the streets to the cemeteries and but few isolated cases of bodies being found are reported. The troops are still patrolling the streets and the thieves and looters have been taught a lesson and general quiet and obedience to orders follows.

Hunting Friends.
There are still numerous cases of many vessels are coming in and unloading supplies. Of course there are no cargoes to go out but the work of rebuilding the city will bring hundreds of vessels to the wharves with supplies.

The Meat Supply.
The Western Meat Company have established headquarters and announced this morning that they are in a position to supply a normal demand for fresh meats. The supplies that are being distributed also are of much aid to the sufferers the majority of whom are now making permanent camps in the Golden Gate Park or families being separated and there is a constant stream of inquiries at the police and intelligence headquarters and gradually families are being reunited. The lack of money has been a serious one, but with the temporary relief of the clearing house this will be less.

Big Burned District
The map shows the burned district covers an area of 453 city blocks. It is estimated that sixty thousand buildings were destroyed. The street cars will be running on several lines today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 26.—The appropriation of $5,000 for the University of Wisconsin agricultural experiment station, as provided by Congressman H. C. Adams' bill, increasing the income of all experiment stations, has just been received by the state treasurer. The Adams bill provides for increasing the present appropriation of the agricultural stations under the Hatch and Morrill acts by $5,000 for the year ending next June, and by an additional $2,000 annually above the amount of the preceding year for the next five years. At the end of the five years this will amount to an increase of $15,000, bringing the total appropriation to each experiment station to $30,000 annually. The funds are to be applied only to paying the necessary expenses of conducting original researches or experiments bearing directly on the agricultural industry of the United States, with due regard for the varying conditions and needs of the states in which the stations are located. This new appropriation under the Adams bill will make possible an increased amount of investigative work at the University of Wisconsin agricultural experiment station, in which a number of important problems in regard to farming in Wisconsin are now being investigated.

BRIEF REVIEW OF SITUATION

John Gallan O'Laughlin Compares Spooner
And La Follette's Present Action.

OPEN WARFARE MAY BE DECLARED

Fair Statement Of The Situation As It Exists In Washington From An Unbiased Standpoint
By Writer.

In an article on Senator Spooner and Senator LaFollette, the two United States Senators from Wisconsin, in John Gallan O'Laughlin, the talented Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune says the following interesting things regarding their different stands on matters of national importance:

Senator Spooner will make a speech on the Indian bill in a few days which will be in the nature of a public announcement that he and Senator LaFollette have reached the parting of the ways in Washington, as they did long ago in Wisconsin.

When Senator LaFollette came here Senator Spooner made every effort to arrange for a proper reception of his colleague by the senate. He consulted with a number of the leaders as to the course he should pursue, and in accordance with their advice, and his own inclinations he met the junior Wisconsin senator and escorted him down the aisle of the senate chamber to the vice president's desk, where LaFollette presented his credentials.

Senator Spooner arranged other things in order to make his colleague's entrance into the senate as easy and enjoyable as possible. By reason of his long service, and of his commanding ability, Senator Spooner is able to secure consideration from the administration and his colleagues which is denied to Senator LaFollette, just as it is denied to every new senator. He secured some appointments for Wisconsin which were not approved by Senator LaFollette. The latter made a fight against confirmation in the committee and was beaten.

Views on Rate Bill Differ.
Senator LaFollette's position on the rate bill is diametrically opposed to that of Senator Spooner. He does not think the rate bill goes far enough. Senator Spooner, while favoring the bill, wants a broad court review amendment, and he has drafted a proposal, part of which has been accepted by the president and undoubtedly will go into the measure as finally passed.

When Senator LaFollette lectured the senate the other day for not remaining in the chamber in order to hear him discuss the railroad rate question, he threatened that many seats which were then temporarily vacant would become permanently so as soon as the people understood the situation. Senator Spooner was not in his seat at the time Senator LaFollette made this declaration. He and most of the other members of the senate were at luncheon.

Spooner listened to LaFollette during the first afternoon, but the subsequent two days on which the junior senator continued his speech Spooner was absent. His eyes have been giving him a great deal of trouble, and besides, he has been preparing a speech in answer to Senator Bailey on the constitutional question involved in the rate legislation. This speech will be delivered tomorrow.

Opposed on Indian Question.
Senator LaFollette has been taking a great deal of interest in the Indian question. When he first arrived in Washington he discovered a gigantic scheme to defraud the Indians, in which officials of the interior department were involved. He had seen some attorneys who were trying to make a tidy little commission amounting to $1,500,000 out of coal, land and leases in the territory of the five civilized tribes.

If anything has been shown during the last seven years it has been the unswerving and rugged honesty of Secretary Hitchcock. The secretary was working to the same end as Senator LaFollette—to prevent the Indians from being defrauded. Senator LaFollette quoted a mass of statistics which were not right, though in justice to him it should be said they had been given him by an official authority, and he believed them to be correct.

On the last day that the senate committee on Indian affairs was considering the Indian appropriation bill Senator LaFollette offered an amendment directing the return of a fund amounting to $500,000 to the Chippewa Indians of Lake Superior. The money represented the proceeds of the sale of timber from the individual allotments of the Chippewa Indians.

See Covert Attack on Spooner.
The Indian agent in charge of this fund is Capt. Samuel W. Campbell, who is a Spooner appointee. Whether covertly to attack Spooner or to comply with the wishes of the business element in the neighborhood of the Chippewa lands, or both, LaFollette drafted an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill providing that the funds should be given in a lump sum to the Indians instead of being doled out in small payments.

LaFollette told Senator Clapp, chairman of the committee, that as the amendments related to matters within his own state he could demand properly that it be reported favorably by the Indian committee.

In the report on the Indian appropriation bill there are three pages devoted to the LaFollette amendment, and there is reason to believe this discussion was prepared by the junior Wisconsin senator. Therein it is stated that the money is deposited in various banks and held by lumber firms, and except in one instance apparently without security.

Report Hints at Graft.
This result of the guardianship of the government, the report stated, "over the estates and affairs of these Indians seems to have been the protection and fostering of the interests of the banks and lumber companies rather than the interests of the Indians."

In advocating the turning over of the money to the Indians, the report states that it is not the intention of the proposed amendment to permit the dissipation of the Indian's property and allow him to become a public charge, but to give to the Indian that which is his by law.

Senator Spooner presented in the senate yesterday a letter from Assistant Indian Commissioner Larrabee, transmitting a report made by Capt. Campbell. Capt. Campbell and Mr. Larrabee make a reply to Senator LaFollette's statements, which means that the LaFollette amendment will be beaten. It is shown that the funds are deposited in five national banks and that the Indian agent is under a bond of $400,000.

Senior Senator Plans Retort.
Campbell says if there has been any grafting he alone is responsible, and he is willing to be thoroughly investigated. The charge that lumber firms hold back money on lumber purchased he says is false, they being required to pay every thirty days. Both Mr. Larrabee and Capt. Campbell agree that if the Indians be given the money they will dissipate it among the saloons of Ashland and other points in Wisconsin.

Senator Spooner in his speech will uphold Capt. Campbell and the present method, under which the Indian can get a small sum monthly and allotments if he wants to make improvements. Senator Clapp will not oppose Senator Spooner's motion striking out the LaFollette amendment.

PROPOSITION OF SEEDS

William Wolff Smith Writes On The

Free Seed Proposition Which Is

Soon To Be Settled.

By William Wolff Smith.

Washington, D. C., April 25.—Within a few days the house will be confronted with the proposition of whether or not it will stand by the recommendations of its committee on agriculture and abolish the "congressional free seed distribution." It is somewhat surprising that there should be any doubt as to the action of the house, and yet the committee fears that its recommendations will be disregarded and that the appropriation will be voted back into the bill. If this is done in the house it will be indirect opposition to overwhelming public sentiment. Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is on record as firm in his opposition to this in discriminate distribution of common garden seeds such as onions, turnips, radishes and beans. The National Grange, roused by the insulting charge that the distribution is only continued because "the farmers want the seeds,"

by resolutions adopted at its convention, through its presiding officer, N.

J. Bachelder, of Concord, New Hampshire, through its legislative committee and in the columns of its official organ, The National Grange Bulletin, has unsparringly denounced the practice and has resented the imputation that the farmers want these cheap

seeds. Postmaster General Cortelyou would be glad to see the distribution abolished because the seeds clog the mails and his department is compelled to bear the cost of distributing them as well as the loss of revenue from the postage which would be paid if the seeds were sent out by the seed merchants. The press is a unit against the distribution and thousands of letters against its continuance have been received by members of the house from their constituents.

The common vegetable seeds of the last distribution cost $30,000, so that each of the forty million packets distributed was intrinsically worth less than a quarter of a cent—25-100,000 th to be exact. As these are put up in packages of five packets each, the total value of the seeds to the recipients was slightly less than one and a quarter cents. To distribute these seeds costs the government a comparatively enormous sum. It costs $170,-

000 in the department of agriculture alone, for the packing, the clerical work, and the selection, examination, testing and purchasing of the seeds.

The railroads receive about $36,000 a year for carrying them, while the value of the time of the postoffice clerks, railway mail clerks and carriers, both city and rural, consumed in distributing them, is estimated at certainly not less than $200,000. The loss of revenue to the postoffice department is estimated at from $238,-

000 to $300,000, so that there is a total loss to the postoffice department of at least half a million dollars.

In order to approximate the amount of mail matter sent out by the various departments under frank inquiry was recently made of each department in the city. The treasury department reported an average of seventy-five sacks, per diem, which, at three hundred letters or parcels to the sack, would amount to 22,500 a day. The pension office sent out last year 1,795,

000 pieces and the department of jus-street, chairman of the committee on postoffices, and others. "Representative Cheney, of Indiana, is the only republican, who so far as known, has pledged himself to vote for the appropriation, but the democrats who favor it expect considerable support from the republican side, notwithstanding the positive opposition of Speaker Cannon and the leaders who are against this piecemeal graft.

Washington has had many famous hotel keepers in its time. Among them was John Guy, for many years the host of the National hotel. Mr. Guy was a large man physically and walked and talked with dignity enough to have been a member of the senate. In the days before the war, the famous hosteler of the city, where all great politicians put up while here. A large number of senators and congressmen made it their winter home, and more than one cabinet officer of these democratic days lived at the National. Among them was Gen. Lewis Cass, and a good story in regard to him was told the other evening by a party of reminiscents. There was a very marked resemblance between Guy, the host, and Cass, the guest, and on more than one occasion the one had been mistaken for the other. This caused Guy to imitate Cass more and more in dress and walk. One day an old friend of Guy, from the west came to the hotel and after registering saw, as he supposed, Guy on the other side of the room. He walked up to him and slapped him familiarly on the shoulder, saying, "Well, old fellow, here I am again. The last time I was here they gave me a beastly room on the fourth floor, and I don't want to be served that way again." By this time the one he was addressing turned toward him, and with great dignity and coldness said: "I do not know you sir, I am General Cass of Michigan." The westerner slipped away as fast as his heels could carry him. He looked at his friend Guy, and soon caught sight of him. Going up, he hastily said, "Well, well, do you know, that I made an awful blunder a little while ago. I mistook old Cass for you, and said something that I think deeply offended the old duffer." To his horror he found he was again confronting the Michiganier. The westerner called for his grip and put up at another hotel.

Speculation as to the date of the adjournment of congress is active. Naturally they would like to get away as early as possible but the prospects are that this will be the longest session for a number of years. As everyone knows, or ought to know, each congress has a long and a short session. Elected in November at the even numbered years, the members take their seats on the first Monday in December of old numbered years. Thus, the members of the present house were elected in November, 1904 but not sworn in until December 1905. The session beginning in December, 1905, which is thus the first session of a new congress, continues for a whole year, if the members care to sit that long. It can run up to noon on the first Monday of the even years, when the second regular session must begin. The second or short sessions always terminate at noon on the fourth of March in the odd years, but that is when the terms of the members of the house expire and there is no "house of representatives" until the new one is organized the following December, unless congress is convoked earlier in "special session" by the president.

Because of this situation the congress tries to get as much work out of the way in the long sessions as possible and the greater part of legislation enacted during the life of a congress, with the exception of the appropriation bills, which have to be passed each session, is perfected during the long session and either passed or put in shape for hasty passage at the short session.

It was hoped that congress would be able to adjourn by June 15, but the important questions before this body this session have consumed so much time that the date has been tentatively postponed to July 1. The debate in the senate over the railroad rate bill has been given a new lease of life by the speech of Senator La Follette, which acted somewhat in the nature of a fire-brand. At least half a dozen senators who have already spoken exhaustively, have declared their intention of answering him, which will occupy much additional time. Aside from this, however, the senate has little to do except pass the regular appropriation bills and, perhaps, to consider the Philippine tariff bill and the free alcohol bill, neither of which, however, may come up. It will also have to adjust its dispute with the house over the statehood and pure food bills and, possibly, over the railroad rate bill.

The house has still several important appropriation bills, the pure food bill and the ship subsidy bill to consider. The latter will not come up until toward the end of the session and may possibly go over to next session. There will probably be a public buildings bill this session, but no river and harbor bill is expected until next winter. It will thus be seen that congress has still plenty to keep it here for some time. The last "long session" adjourned the first of May and the two before that early in June.

PROTESTS MADE
BY RAILROADSNORTH-WESTERN FILES PAPERS WITH RATE COMMISSION.

THEY GIVE THEIR REASONS

Two-Cents-a-Mile Proposition Has Serious Objectionable Reasons for Not Passing.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 26.—The Chicago & North-Western railroad company has presented to the Wisconsin state railroad rate commission its reasons for objecting to the proposed reduction of the maximum passenger fare from three to two cents a mile, and the commission has taken the representations under advisement. No decision will be rendered until the five leading companies against whom filed have had their hearings, after which the commission will again study the subject and render its order. It is said that a reduction will surely be made, either to two and one-half cents or to two cents, but that such a decision will result in litigation, the railroads taking the matter into the courts on the ground that the reduction, however small, at the present time would wipe out all chance of the roads making any profit on the passenger business.

The North-Western road during its hearing, placed upon the witness stand the officers of its passenger department and presented voluminous figures to show that the traffic in Wisconsin was not highly profitable; that the average rate paid for travel is not much more than two cents a mile on account of the many excursions, cheap rates for special occasions, and because of the fact that the people who travel most use mile age tickets and credentials, which cost two cents or less per mile. Questions asked by members of the commission seem to indicate that they are trying to find out if it will work a great hardship to the railroads to reduce the maximum rate to two cents a mile, and place the railroads under the necessity of cutting out the excursions and slightly paid traffic. The indications are that the commission believes it would be more just to the public and to the railroads as well if a flat rate of two cents a mile were charged, rather than that some people pay three cents, some two cents and some less; the question being, to determine whether such a change can be effected consistently with maintaining a gross revenue that shall be compensatory, which must be long if the change is to be sustained in the courts. W. B. Kniskern, general passenger manager of the North-Western road, was asked by the commission to explain why the large buyers of passenger service, the commercial travelers and others who patronize the trains extensively, are given better rates than the people who travel little. Mr. Kniskern said it was simply an application of the whole sale principle to the making of passenger rates, the same as in all business the large buyers are given better prices than the small buyers. The discussion that followed developed the fact that the commission has in mind the claim frequently urged that inasmuch as the railroads are public service corporations there ought to be no discriminations between the large and the small patron, the same as in the postoffice service, the large mail order house, using vast volumes of postal service, get no reductions or favorable terms, or the small patron. This objection is established in the freight business as shown by the anti-robate laws, and it is believed that the Wisconsin railroad rate commission is inclined to think that it ought to be established in the passenger business.

General News.

Nearly all of the railroads in San Francisco have opened temporary offices in and about the ruined city and in Oakland, and all are open for business again. The Burlington route was one of the first to find temporary quarters, its former office in the Palace hotel having been dynamited by the fire fighters.

Passenger traffic officials are beginning to lay plans for the summer business on the Pacific coast, which at first was thought to be greatly injured by the earthquake and fire at San Francisco. While some of them believe that the traffic will not be so heavy as it otherwise would have been, others believe that the morbid curiosity of the average American will take enough of them to San Francisco to view the ruins to make up for any decrease resultant from the disaster.

Attorney General Carson of Pennsylvania has given copies of a bill in equity that he will file shortly against the Pennsylvania, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, the Lehigh Valley, the Cumberland Valley, the Buffalo and Susquehanna and the Erie Railroad companies for a perpetual injunction to stop the collection of a rebate of ten dollars on each freight dollar's interchangeable mileage book sold. He holds that it forces the passenger to give bail for his conduct, takes the passengers' money, to protect the railroads against scalpers, imposes all chances of loss on the holder and subjects the holder to unreasonable expense and annoyance.

Pleasure resorts along the east shore of Lake Michigan have a great advantage over similar places in Wisconsin, the upper peninsula of Michigan and Minnesota as a result of the action of the Western Passenger association. This advantage lies in the fact that the east shore places have a rate of one fare plus two dollars for the round trip from all territory south and east of Chicago, while the other resorts have a rate equivalent to eighty per cent of the round trip fare. This unfortunate condition, for such it is, railroad men declare, resulted from the attempt of the Burlington route officials to protect the lake resorts of Minnesota that are now crying discrimination against them. Instead of obtaining as low rates as was desired for the Minnesota points the road succeeded in getting the rates to the Wisconsin and upper peninsula places raised to a parity with the Minnesota rates.

...FORTY YEARS AGO...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, April 26, 1866.—Thank You.—The ladies and gentlemen who sing some sweet music under our window last night, will please accept our thanks. We very much regret that we were not at home to hear it.

Arrived.—Mr. Russell has arrived, and is now stopping at the Schuyler House, with eleven boys between the ages of sixteen and nineteen, for whom he desires to obtain situations on farms in this vicinity.

In our notice of the amount raised for the survey of Rock River, we stated that the city had contributed about one half the sum needed. It should have been nearly one third the sum necessary.

A New Brick Block.—We learn that it is definitely settled by Messrs. Holdridge, Rogers, Bates and Wheeler, to erect a brick block on the site of the burnt district on Main street, this summer. The building is to be 80 by 120 feet, three stories high, and is to be built of Milwaukee brick. It will be a great improvement to that portion of the street, and we doubt not will pay handsomely on the investment.

Fred Douglass.—We are gratified to learn that the "Young Men's Association" has succeeded in securing the services of this gentleman to deliver his very popular lecture on "The Assassination and Its Reasons," in this city on Saturday evening, May 5th.

Those who heard Mr. Douglass when he spoke here before will not fail to hear him again. To those who did not hear him on that occasion we say do not lose this opportunity of hearing one of the most able and popular speakers before the public.

Accident.—A Dry Goods Man Run Over.—Last evening a man whose initials are Joseph Bostwick, took Mr. A. C. Bates' team to carry some goods into the First Ward. He had a pleasant trip out, but on his return something about the wagon gave away, and the horse quickened his pace. Bostwick lost his presence of mind and he certainly did his presence of body, and jumped from the wagon. Be that as it may, he had the misfortune to fall under one of the wheels which passed over him. Being of the robust form no damage resulted, and Joseph gathered himself up and went to look after the team. The horses, having parted company with their driver, came leisurely down town.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Al. H. Wilson, (Metz), in His New Play, "The German Gypsy." Golden voiced singer, Al. H. Wilson, (Metz) in Robert Sidney's new play, "The German Gypsy," an attraction rich and touching in heart interest, rollicking comedy, and side-splitting climaxes, is the offering at the Myers Grand Friday, April 27.

The scenes are laid in America at the present day, and for picturesque interest in theme and ensemble surpass any production in which this genre of the way to speak lines effectively, and a singing voice that would carry his impersonation even were he less generously equipped in other directions. Mr. Wilson sings ballads with rare feeling and his voice has that sympathetic quality that is above, being and wholly out of reach of all being nature's own and an inestimable and most rare gift. Mr. Wilson has ample opportunity in "The German Gypsy" to introduce those tender, touching and true songs so dear to

AL. H. WILSON IN "THE GERMAN GYPSY" TOMORROW EVENING

German dialect comedian has ever appeared. While brilliant, laughable comedy is the "key note" by which with provoking situations are attuned with the more serious elements, funny complications, bright as the summer moon, abound in plentiful confusion and the shy chuckle of pleased fancy broadens into the loud guffaw of denouement, employment at unexpected denouement.

Mr. Al. H. Wilson, (Metz) has been termed by competent critics, "The Golden Voiced Singer," has youth, physical grace, agility, a knowledge every mother, wife and sweetheart. Six new songs—each one the peach bloom of beauty, each a gem of melody, and each surpassing the other—will be sung by this talented artist during the action of the play. They include a charming love ballad, "No Love Like Thine," a swinging waltz refrain, "Under the Harvest Moon," a tender conceit, "Gretchen," and others of equal merit, "The Love Trust," "The Girl For Me," "My German Rose," "Katie Krause," and "The Rocky Road to Dublin." Mr. Wilson also introduces in character selections the "Zinzura Gypsy Trio."

FOOTBALL QUESTION IS OF IMPORTANCE

Janesville May Play the Soccer Game
Next Fall—Other Talk on Question.

At the meeting of the high school principals held in Milwaukee in connection with the Wisconsin Teachers' association, a committee of five, composed of G. A. Chamberlain, H. C. Bell, M. N. McVey, S. B. Tobey and N. J. McArthur was appointed, with instructions to disseminate information concerning association (Soccer) football. The report of this committee was issued yesterday and contains a synopsis of the game, explaining the game so that the principals of the high schools, throughout the state, to whom these reports are to be sent, will be able to get a fairly good idea of the game.

The members of the board of control of the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association, who are also members of this committee, wish it distinctly understood that they are acting in this matter at the request of the association and simply for the purpose of securing and furnishing information.

Some of the reasons given in the report, why the friends of the game think that it is well adapted to high school boys, are:

- 1—Any healthy boy can play it with safety. Accordingly it is suited to high school boys as a whole.
- 2—It places a premium on speed, endurance, clear judgment, individual initiative and intelligent co-operation, all of which are qualities of greatest importance.
- 3—It is played in an erect position, favorable for good lung development.
- 4—It makes players sure of foot.
- 5—It does not require an expensive equipment for players.
- 6—It is an open game in which the officials have an opportunity to see and prohibit slugging, tripping, or even unnecessary roughness.
- 7—It is an admirable spectators' game.
- 8—It would meet with little or no objections on the part of the parents.
- 9—It is the best kind of training for boys who wish to play Rugby in college.
- 10—While not dangerously rough, it is sufficiently strenuous to develop virile qualities as courage and self-control.

The principals are requested as soon as they have read the rules and thought of the merits of the game to inform the committee as to whether they will organize a team and play the game during the fall of 1906, so that the committee can inform the different ones where the game will be played. Answers to the following two questions are also requested before May 15. The first is, would you favor the abolition of the present Rugby game and the substitution of this game for it in your school? The second is, will you play both games next fall to permit your students to choose between them?

Dems May Have Convention.

The Times can see no harm and it may result in good to hold such a convention.

Pennywise on Painting

The cost of the paint, be it the minor portion of a bill for painting, is putting it in that costs. The outlay for paint is rarely more than a fourth, never more than a third. A little personal attention to the paint your painter uses will save you the necessity of hiring him so often.

Shipman Pure White Lead, (made by the Old Dutch Process) mixed with Pure Linseed Oil and properly applied lasts many years. Mixtures of unknown ingredients last from one year to three, according to the proportions of real paint (White Lead) they have in them. Some mixtures have almost no White Lead, and consequently almost no value as paint.

Skilled labor and poor material are a most expensive combination. In using Pure White Lead you get full value for the painter's time.

Send for a booklet containing several handsome reproductions of actual houses, offering valuable suggestions for a color scheme in painting your house. A test for paint purity is also given.

EARTHQUAKE THEORIES.

The New York Tribune explains the earthquake theories in the following manner: The recent convulsion of nature on the Pacific coast has revived the discussion of the influences which bring about such phenomenon. Earthquakes fall into two general classes. One seems to be associated with volcanic eruptions in point of time and geographically. The other class is not. The tremors observed on the island of Martinique four years ago, when Pelée was disturbed, illustrate the first variety. The question then arises whether the shocks in California could have been related in any way to the outbreak of Vesuvius a week or two before. Professor Matteucci has been credited with saying that the two might be effects of the same cause, but he was careful not to suggest that one was the cause of the other. He probably meant to hint that the same kind of forces, acting locally, operated in both places, and not that one event was in any sense connected with the other. It has been observed that the great majority (if not all) of the volcanoes on the globe are distributed among crevices in the rocky crust. Such localities seem to be the scene of the worst earthquakes also. If anything occurred to re-open an old fissure, so as to admit water to the heated interior of the earth, an explosion would follow, and, if a convenient vent was available, steam, ashes and perhaps lava would be ejected from it. On the other hand, a disarrangement of strata along a "fault" might occur where the other requisites to an "igneous" demonstration were lacking. A readjustment of the position of the rocks would be accomplished only by overcoming friction and other resisting agencies, and more or less vigorous vibration would be excited.

Professor Stevenson, a high geological authority, suggests that there may have been a renewal of subterranean activity among the extinct craters of the Sierras. The old outlets there being sealed, the mechanical energy which has suddenly developed might possibly (he thinks) have caused the disturbance on the coast. This is certainly an interesting conjecture, and is not to be rejected hastily, but the distance between the mountains and the scene of the observed disturbance warrants a little hesitation in accepting the notion. Indeed, it is to be observed that Professor Stevenson mentions it with caution and as only one of the several possible explanations.

Several curious theories have been advanced to account for the strains to which earthquakes give relief. It was once suspected that the moon excited a tide in the fluid interior of the earth. A limited number of observations encouraged the view that there were more shocks when the earth's satellite was in a favorable position to operate in that manner than at other times. According to Major Dutton, perhaps the best American authority in such matters, the statistical preponderance disappears when a larger number of earthquakes is considered. The supposition that the earth is composed of a shell whose contents are liquid is now less generally held than it was once. Major Dutton also discredits the belief that the shrinkage of the interior from the radiation of heat has been sufficient to set up stresses in the crust serious enough to explain the phenomena in question.

Mr. Milne, an Englishman, who has accumulated much data in regard to earthquakes, suspects that there may be some relation between them and the wabbling of the earth on its axis. The latter eccentricity has long been known to astronomers, though its cause is not fully understood. Mr. Milne thinks that it may be climatic differences in the load of ice and snow at the poles from year to year, making the axis tilt more at one time than another. Mr. Milne holds the maximum stage of solar activity, as indicated by sunspots, responsible for the temperature changes here represented; and Sir Norman Lockyer, a prominent astronomer, evinces confidence in the possibility. There are several weak points in the chain of reasoning of Mr. Milne and Sir Norman, but the weakest is the supposition that the wabbling motion of the earth's axis could produce the effect which they impute to it. If they fancy that the swing could cause variations in the intensity of the attraction exerted by other celestial bodies on the earth's interior, their belief would seem to have no more justification than the now discarded theory of lunar influence.

There are much simpler ways to explain the strains which, it is generally conceded, give rise to shocks like those which have just caused desolation on the Pacific coast. Inland there are enormous mountain ranges. The ocean bottom slopes downward rapidly off shore. Thus in calculable differences of pressure exist on the earth's interior. These are permanent in character, though they act intermittently. Then from the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys there is a steady transfer of solid material to the sea by fluvial action. The effect of this agency is gradual and cumulative, but many geologists consider it adequate to cause "dislocation" earthquakes.

PRESS COMMENT.

Handwriting On Wall, Nonsense. St. Louis Globe-Democrat: A contribution to the relief fund is better than moralizing about Belshazzar.

Confidence Unimpaired.

Milwaukee Sentinel: So local pastors are disposed to acquit God of blame for the disaster, and extend a vote of unimpaired confidence.

Going Way Behind The Returns. Exchange: Anti-imperialistic opinion of Funston's course at San Francisco seems to be that he didn't swim the Bagbag, anyhow.

Is President a Muck-Pile? Milwaukee Free Press: There is a good deal more complaint from the muck pile than anywhere else against the man with the muck rake.

Dowie's Last Chance. Chicago Tribune: Apparently the only thing left for Dowie to do is to have his beard trimmed French fashion and make an entirely new start in life.

Should Have Staid There. Exchange: There is, says Gorky, "more personal liberty in Russia than in America." Then somebody over there is making much ado about nothing.

Little Point Overlooked. Sheboygan Journal: The railroads are transporting free to California goods that would cost, if freight were paid, $3,450,000. Senator La Follette overlooked that point in his speech.

that they are no more to be trusted than their predecessors.

McGillivray's First Grin. Racine Journal: Senator McGillivray opened his campaign for the governorship in an address at Camp Douglas last Saturday evening. In a few weeks the merry war will be on in earnest.

Too Busy For Sighing. Detroit Free Press: About the time that the novelty of the first baby wears off the mother usually sighs and says that babies are an awful care. But the mother with six to look after is too busy to do any sighing.

Easy Way to Stir Up Fuss. Chicago News: Any one who loves excitement and is not particular as to how he gets it can always fall back on the expedient of quoting President Roosevelt incorrectly.

They'd Have to Lay Low. Exchange: There is also another good thing which would probably result from the plan of taxing large fortunes—it would have a tendency to prevent much vulgar ostentation.

Merely Missing. Marinette Eagle-Star: The Milwaukee Journal complains of a lack of "factual politics" in this paper. The Journal itself does not seem to be doing much at it.

Socialist Hearst Don't Like Him. Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Republican: Mr. Bryan has become one of the forces opposed to socialism who will have to be taken into consideration. That is why Mr. Hearst has no more use for Mr. Bryan.

Swing of Earthquake Waves.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Probably the best record of the San Francisco earthquake is that registered by instruments at the state museum in Albany, N. Y. It is automatically inscribed on smoked paper, and shows the exact time, duration and intensity of the earth's vibrations. Observers at the museum knew before the arrival of dispatches that an earthquake of more than ordinary violence had occurred. The maximum record swing of the waves at Albany was three inches, the actual scoring being about one-tenth that figure. Reduced to San Francisco time, the earthquake began at 5:21 1/2 a. m., and the vibrations were recorded at Albany for considerably more than an hour. The waves of greatest intensity lasted eleven minutes.

MUCH INTERESTED IN CUBAN ISLAND

JANESVILLE PEOPLE RETURN FROM TRIP.

SAW MANY FUNNY SIGHTS

Impressions of the Country Are Lasting and Give an Idea of Prosperity.

Dr. W. H. Judd and wife and T. O. Howe and wife returned last evening from a week's visit to Cuba and surrounding towns and are full of the beauties of the little island republic that lies just south of the United States. The party left Janesville on the ninth of April and went directly to Atlanta, where they spent one day. They went to Jacksonville for a day and then to St. Augustine, visiting the sights of this city, the oldest settlement on the American continent. A day was spent at Balm Beach, one of the beauty spots of Florida. Miami was next on the visiting list and the party visited pineapple, orange and coconut groves that surrounded the city. The soil, which is covered with six inches of what is soft rock, is placed on the streets, making them come to macadam. It cost a hundred dollars an acre to clear it off and then the property is worth large sums of money. At Miami the party took a steamer to Key West. Here the steamer Olivette was taken for Havana. The trip took only a little less than twelve hours.

In Cuba The party stopped at the Hotel Pardo on Pardo street, one of the beautiful streets of Havana. The sight going into the harbor is beautiful. The party saw the wreck of the Maine, Morro castle and other points of international interest. On Sunday they attended the Catholic cathedral (Easter Sunday) and nine priests were celebrating the mass. Beggars stand just inside the church door and ask alms. Rich and poor sit together, negroes and whites. The negroes all talk Spanish. The colored people are thin and tall and have the features of the white man. There is no distinction in class. In the fire engine-houses, the horses stand in front of the engines all the time, their stalls being so arranged. A visit was paid to the Colon cemetery where the Maine victims were buried. The rapidity of the burying of the dead was noted, three being interred in fifteen minutes. No women attend the funeral at the cemetery. Among the rich the body is attended by a few men and in the cases of the poor no one goes but the undertaker. There is no ceremony at the grave. One thing was particularly noticeable—the saloons in Havana. They are open; no bars, and everyone—men and women—sit at little tables where refreshments, both liquid and solid, are brought to them. There is no drunkenness, the only drunk man seen being an American at the hotel.

Riding in Cabs. Everyone rides in cabs, little two-wheeled "arrangements" costing about sixteen cents for two people to ride. Few pretty women were seen by the party, although outside the business portion of the city children almost naked were seen running about the streets. Dr. Judd found that the Cubans expect and hope for annexation with the United States. Several told him that they thought it would come about very soon. Everyone smokes. After dinner everyone smokes, whether the ladies are present or not. Prices are higher than in the United States, except laces and tobacco. Milk sells for ten cents a quart and eggs seven cents apiece. Oxen are used to drag heavy carts through the streets. The horses are heavily harnessed, with plumes and fancy ornaments with sleigh-bells fastened to them. Goats are seen in profusion everywhere. The people are neatly dressed and are very accommodating and polite, but not one in twenty can talk English. The land looks rich and is very level. Real estate is increasing in value in both Havana and the country around.

DIED IN MIDST OF WANT AND MISERY

Mrs. J. S. DePay Bade Her Little Boy Good-bye at Eleven O'clock Last Evening.

Deserted by her husband six years ago and doomed with her twelve-year-old boy to a life of poverty and want, Mrs. J. S. DePay fought bravely to keep the wolf from the door until, having nursed the child through a siege of measles she was overtaken by the same malady in a more severe form. Helpless and compelled to ask for aid the boy sought Poor Commissioner Kenyon and some of the necessities of life were taken to the little two-room abode at 408 South Jackson street. At ten o'clock last evening the brave woman, knowing that the end was near, called her boy, advised him of the possibility of securing some help from relatives near Brown town after, as must soon happen, he should be cast penniless upon the world, and kissed him several times. Then she began to sink rapidly and shortly after the arrival of the physician, Dr. Sutherland, who had been called for her, she died. A call was sent to the police headquarters and Officer Fanning, taking the unhappy little fellow in hand, gently persuaded him to accompany him to the station office, where a bed for him was made on a couch and everything possible done for his comfort. The body of the dead woman was removed to Kimball's undertaking rooms. Early this morning Poor Commissioner Kenyon took the boy, Richard, to Mrs. B. R. O'Neill's boarding-house. He is a bright and prepossessing little fellow, though fragile and still showing the effects of his illness.

ANNUAL MEETING OF COUNTY ASSESSORS

Supervisor of Assessment Frank P. Starr Presided at Session Here Tuesday.

The annual meeting of the assessors of Rock county was held at the courthouse Tuesday. Thirty-four of the thirty-five assessors of the county were present. Supervisor of Assessment F. P. Starr presided and in addressing the meeting congratulated the assessors on the progress that they had made toward a more uniform assessment for Rock county and emphasized the fact that with a few exceptions they had done their duty. He compared the conditions of the past with the present and urged the assessors to assess all property in such a manner that the burthen of taxation shall rest on rich and poor alike, according to the amount of taxable property that they own. The responsibility and difficulties of the task before them were also pointed out. The speaker also discussed in a plain and concise manner the assessment law and the powers and duties of assessors.

Supervisor H. L. Skavlem of Janesville, a member of the county board and of the equalization committee, addressed the meeting and spoke of the assessment and equalization of property in Rock county in a very thorough and convincing manner and congratulated the supervisor of assessment on the work of the last year. He appealed to the assessors to make a fair and equitable assessment, not only as a matter of justice between taxpayers but also in order that the committee on equalization might use the local assessment as a basis on which to equalize the state and county taxes.

Supervisor Cannon of Beloit, also a member of the committee on equalization, addressed the meeting and gave his experience as an assessor and as a member of the county board and brought out many good points in regard to the assessment of property and asked the assessors to work in harmony in making an assessment that would equalize the burden of taxes.

The assessors entered into the discussion with enthusiasm and the meeting was interesting and beneficial to all.

PRINCESS PAULINE DYING FROM WOUNDS

Lion Trainer Who Appeared Here Last Fall Is Fearfully Mangled by Beast.

Those who attended the animal show of the Ferris Brothers during the Eagles' street carnival last September remember the work of the woman styled "Princess Pauline" who had the principal act of the show in the large caged arena. Many will also remember the hybrid cat, the cross between the lion, leopard and jaguar, that snarled and snapped as it stood on the seat near the right of the arena. Wednesday afternoon this vicious animal nearly killed the trainer, Princess Pauline, tearing her right breast off, severing an artery in her arm and chewing her hand to a pulp. The woman now lies on the point of death in a hospital in Toledo, Ohio. The accident happened just as the day's training was over and the animals were being driven back into their cages. The animal sprung upon Princess Pauline without warning. As she fell she knocked a wooden bench between herself and the beast, and this saved her from instant death. One paw of the beast tore off her breast, another tore her arm, while the animal viciously grasped her hand in its mouth. After a terrific fight Head Trainer MacPherson and Colonel Ferris drove the beast away with hot rods. The woman has small chance of recovery.

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF AN AUTOMOBILE

Just A Few Terms That Beginners In The Sport Should Know And Memorize.

What one man who is not an enthusiast on automobiling has to say about the coming national sport will be of interest to the motorists of Janesville now the fashion is firmly established here by the purchase of the many new machines. He says in brief: "A few weeks ago a friend of mine took me out for a whirl in his sixty-horse-power car, with the intention of inspiring in me an ambition to buy one of the big machines. We got out about forty miles when something happened in the interior of the car. It sounded as if the slipper flap had broken. My friend crawled under the car to investigate and found that the finger flap had cracked, allowing the hopperchoke to smash into the dingleback, jamming the bilching against the waffle snatcher so badly that the flaking on the right hand side had torn loose. This was pretty bad, as any chauffeur knows, but the worst of it all was that the plunker hole had become filled up with fibre from the wipperburg, preventing the slapagus from working easily in the packerhatch, and the only thing to be done was to borrow a vibberskid from some passing automobilist and proceed half speed by fixing the emergency cincherber. We did this, and got half way back to the city at the rate of almost a mile an hour, when the rafflebang would loose into the chiggerbit. The machine came to a dead stop, and my friend gave the job up. We came back to town at the end of a rope. I have no desire to own one of the things since that experience."

MORE NEWS FROM FRISCO EARTHQUAKE

Mrs. S. T. Gibbs Is Heard From—Carload of Supplies Starts for the Coast.

Mrs. N. H. Gibbs of No. 6 Clifton street this morning received a letter from her sister-in-law, Mrs. S. T. Gibbs, who has been spending the winter in California, stating that she and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. N. D. Gibbs, and two children were safe. Mrs. Gibbs, who lives on Oakland avenue, was in Oakland the day of the earthquake and was able to leave on one of the first trains. The letter was written from Salt Lake City, where they had stopped. Last night the carload of provisions contributed along the Mineral Point division of the St. Paul road was started for Council Bluffs full to the brim with supplies for the California sufferers. At Boscobel ninety-three sacks of flour were furnished; Monticello gave a tub of choice weighing 700 pounds, and hams, potatoes and clothing constituted the rest of the cargo. Janesville share was mostly clothing, which will be much needed. The car was loaded here and goes direct to Council Bluffs, where a train will be made of such cars and they will be rushed through to Frisco over the Union Pacific road.

MOVING THE PEARL BUTTON MACHINERY

Equipment Will Be Shipped To Muscatine, Iowa—Other News Of Spring Brook.

Work of dismantling the Janesville Pearl Button factory, which has for months been standing idle, is now under way. Mr. White, who recently purchased the machinery and other equipment of manufactory will move it to Muscatine, Iowa, where he has similar interests.

"South Janesville." The idea of having a South Janesville did not originate with the men who have purchased large acreage of land near the site of the new North-Western railway yards-to-be. The people of Spring Brook have of late been terming their suburb by this name and hope that new residents to the south of them will join in making this portion of the city an ideal town in itself.

Moving To Oshkosh. Three McKee boulevard families are moving to Oshkosh, the heads having secured positions as finishers in a furniture factory there. They are George Kilby and family, Theodore Kilby and family and Hugo Reese and family. Fred Karst, cabinet-maker, will also go to Oshkosh to work in a mill there.

Suckers And Bullheads. The fishing fever has spread widely among the boys and men of Spring Brook and every evening the banks of the river are lined with Isaac Whitsons. Black-suckers, redhous, and bullheads are now being caught in large quantities. John Kelly made a flying trip to Beloit, Tuesday.

MAXIM GORKY

How Russia's Famous Peasant Author Rose to Champion the Underworld's Cause

Bohemian in Instinct, He Is a Proletarian to the Limit—Has Made Himself One With Tramps and Outcasts—Tall, Straight, Deep Chested and Large Boned, He Is Self Possessed and Masterful

As Tolstol is the prophet of non-resistance and peace, so Gorky is the prophet of protest and revolution. The one, noble born, made himself one with the peasant; the other, peasant born, made himself one with the tramp and outcast. Both are elemental men, dealing with realities. Both have the pessimism and gloom of their race, and both dream of better things to come. The older man is a Christian in his thought, though an unorthodox one, and his political views approach those of the philosophical anarchist; the other is materialistic in tendency and avowedly a Marxist Socialist. Tolstol is socially conventional, has an ideal in life and has a moral armor in which the world can find no flaw; Gorky is a Bohemian in instinct, has left his wife and is living with an actress, and his ethical lessons have been learned in the social cellars. Both of these great Slavs believe a worldwide upheaval is impending; but the old man of gentle blood would have it a warless one, while the young man of moujik descent would meet force with force.

Gorky is the interpreter of the tramp, the voice of the underworld. As he himself expresses it:

"I have come from below, from the nethermost ground of life, where slugs and sludge and muck. . . . I am the truthful voice of that life, back of the appearance is reality. Gorky may be the voice of the slums, but is not their product any more than a traveler is the product of the country he may visit and afterward describe. Gorky is a Russian moujik, but he is more, just as the individual is always more than his attendant circumstances. There are hundreds of Slav nobles, but only one Tolstol; there are millions of Slav peasants, but only one Gorky.

The Real Gorky.

Gorky's physical type is maligned by most of the photographs published. In these he looks nervous, anaemic, hunched, sentimental. The real Maxim Gorky is a tall, straight, deep chested, large boned man. In features he is as far removed from the refined, weak faced, intelligents as from the submissive, apathetic moujik. The forehead is broad, furrowed deeply when he talks and surrounded by a mop of dark hair; the eyes gray, serene, slightly defiant; the nose big, not unlike Tolstol's, but even more shapeless; the mouth big, somewhat grim, and the jaw square, massive and resolute. You feel at once that this is a self possessed, masterful man, a man in whom character is even more remarkable than intellect.

The following anecdote is a revealing sidelight on the man:

He went to the theater at Moscow one evening to see a play by a popular writer. Instead of paying attention to the stage the entire audience rose and greeted Gorky with prodigious acclamations. Then he delivered this address: "What on earth are you staring at me for? I am not a dancing girl nor the Venus of Milo nor a drunkard just picked out of the gutter? I write stories. They have the luck to please you, and I am glad of it. But that is no reason why you should keep on staring. We have come here to see a charming play. Be good enough to attend to that and leave me alone." More delighted than ever, the audience shouted with joy. Perhaps they thought they would get another speech, but Gorky jumped out of his seat and left the theater in disgust.

Lively Appreciation of Our Writers.

It seems that this peasant author has a lively appreciation of some of our own writers.

"I have adored Shakespeare," he says, "ever since the age of fifteen, when as a cabin boy on a Volga steamer I first read 'The Tempest' and 'A Midsummer Night's Dream.' I dislike the gloomy, morbid and asceticism of Dante and Milton. Longfellow's 'Hiawatha' is my favorite American poem. It is fresh, naive, strong and beautiful. I failed to understand Walt Whitman. I love Byron and Shelley. I have always compared Shelley to the Alps and Byron to the Caucasus."

It is somewhat surprising that Gorky does not appreciate Whitman, for the two men are alike in many ways—in their social and democratic ideals, in their lack of the conventional, in the fact that both tramped "the open road," in their elemental manhood and in their complete identification of themselves with the masses.

Gorky's most famous long book is "Foma Gordyev," a tragedy filled with more than the author's usual gloom, but powerful in its character delineation and masterful in its protest against tyranny and aristocratic slams. His short stories are more admired by the general public than his more ambitious efforts. They are original and individual to the highest degree and almost savage in their truthfulness. One feels while reading them that this is a new voice telling of a world different from that which most of us know—a chaotic world just emerging into self consciousness, a primal and naked world, brutal, strong, groping, but terribly real. The atmosphere into which he leads us is strange, but tonic.

From the appearance of Gorky's first story, "Makar Chudra," he was watched by the Russian spies of the government as a possible revolutionist and dangerous character. Anybody that tells the truth in Russia seems to be regarded as a dangerous character.

Gorky was thrown into jail a half dozen times, the last time being for his participation in the revolution.

In Love With Our Freedom.

His coming to this country was for the purpose of raising funds to help his brother Sokolists in their struggle against the bureaucracy. He fell in love with the freedom he beheld here, for it was a revelation. He was especially surprised and delighted by the fact that he saw no soldiers and but few policemen, and wonder of wonders, the cops he did encounter were civil. He was gratified in his very soul to behold on the people's faces a look of hope and self reliance, not the clinging and sullenness to which he was accustomed at home. Here he beheld the democracy of which he had dreamed in his own land. He has spoken of his indescribable emotions as he first saw the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor. It was the symbol of his aspirations, the goal to which he would lead enslaved and dejected Russia.

But one outward incident has attended his visit to America. That was the discovery of the fact that he had not been formally divorced from his first wife or formally married to the woman he now calls his wife. His friends have explained that it is almost impossible to secure a divorce in Russia, but that it is the custom for people to separate by mutual consent and to enter into new alliances which are universally recognized as binding. Gorky had done this, and the first Mrs. Gorky had formed a new alliance as well as himself. If it be true it would seem that there are other things needed by Russia as well as liberty.

J. A. EDGERTON.

MAXIM GORKY.

the harsh cry of those who still abide down there and who have let me come up to bear witness to their suffering."

A Proletarian to the Limit.

Gorky is a pen name, meaning "Bitter," which is sufficiently illuminative of the man's attitude. His real name is Alexei Maximovich Peshkov. His father's name of Maxim he adopted as his own. He was born in 1868 in Nizhny Novgorod. He lost his parents in youth and went to live with his grandfather, who taught him to read. At the age of ten he became apprenticed to a shoemaker, but ran away and entered a draftsman's office. In a year he ran away again and became kitchen boy on a boat. His next job was as a baker in a cellar, which from his description of it was about as horrible a life as one could lead. After this he was a porter, a chorister in a traveling opera company, an apple vendor in the streets, a lawyer's copying clerk and an employee in a station master's office. Once during this time he attempted suicide, shooting himself severely, but recovering from the wound. At another time he tramped pretty much all over Russia, consorting with vagabonds and being one of the proletariat to the limit.

It was while in the station master's office that Gorky published his first story in a Kifsa newspaper. He was twenty-four years old then, and his later stories soon gave him fame in Russia and in time all over the world.

A story of the station master experience reveals Gorky as the kicker then as ever. To a friend who had interested himself in the young man's welfare Gorky addressed the following note:

"The station master seems to be satisfied with me, and as a mark of his good disposition toward me, he has given me a ticket for a journey to the coast."

If health is wealth and money talks for so the proverb runs. A fortune you may plainly see, In taking Rocky Mountain Tea. Smith Drug Co.

reached his path. He knew himself then, and hence was to be known of all men. He felt the fierce joy of doing battle for the cause his soul loved. He was to be a force in the social and political upheaval of mankind.

Voice of the Slums.

Who can measure the impulse in the heart of a man? Who can describe the processes by which a soul gropes its way into the sunlight? Who can unravel the mystery that veils the mind of genius even from itself? Who can determine the exact quality of soul tone that makes the voice of an immortal? Who can tell the sources of the divine urge by which the great ones of the race are driven? We hear the word and see the deed, but know not the prompting that sent them forth. We recognize the genius and hail him with gladness, but cannot tell whence he came. Poverty and want did not make Gorky; else they would make millions more like him. They modified and colored, but did not cause him. They were the avenues through which he arrived, but not the force that sent him forward. That issues from something deeper. Seek not in external accident and incident for the power that makes character. They mold, but do not impel. Environment is but the contour of country that shapes the river's course. It is not the thing that makes the river flow. Outward happenings may give direction to a life, but do not determine the volume or momentum of that life's expression. Look not on the superficial to solve the riddle of a great man. You must search below the surface to find the secret of a Shakespeare or a Socrates. Men are greater than the material through which they manifest. Back of the seeming is substance;

Beautiful women can have the best things in the world, for there is none so inhuman as to refuse anything to a pretty woman. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea makes beautiful women. 35 cents. Smith Drug Co.

HERESY TRIAL IS ON

Rev. Dr. Crapsey Is Accused of Doctrinal Violation.

SERMONS PART OF EVIDENCE

Assistant Rector at St. Andrew's Testifies Regarding Alleged Departure from Tenets Laid Down for Protestant Episcopal Clergymen.

Batavia, N. Y., April 26.—The heresy trial of Rev. Dr. Algernon Crapsey of Rochester, around which centers the first active battle in the long-smoldering conflict between the liberal and conservative elements of the Protestant Episcopal church, began in earnest Wednesday.

After a week's adjournment, during which Dr. Crapsey's counsel, Congressman James Perkins of Rochester and Edward M. Shepard of New York, prepared to fight obstinately for a longer postponement, the ecclesiastical court reconvened in the county courthouse and unanimously denied Mr. Shepard's eloquent plea for further delay.

Denies Jurisdiction. The question was also raised as to whether the ecclesiastical court, as constituted, had jurisdiction. Dr. Crapsey's counsel filed a brief to the effect that it was contrary to the common law of the state that the guilt of any person against whom a presentment is made should be passed upon by a court the majority of whose members are designated by the prosecutor, or by any person who believes the charges so made to be just. Three of the five members of the court are appointees of Bishop Walker, who has pressed the charges against Dr. Crapsey and in whom was reposed the authority to constitute the court. The attorneys for the prosecution answered the contention of the defendant's counsel with the statement that the court, being constituted under canonical law, its jurisdiction and existence in this case cannot be questioned on any basis of the common law of the state.

John L. O'Brien, of Buffalo, is leading counsel for the prosecution, assisted by John H. Stiness former chief justice of Rhode Island, and Rev. Francis J. Hall, of the Western Theological seminary, Chicago.

Dr. Crapsey is represented by Congressman James B. Perkins, of Rochester, and Edward M. Shepard, of New York.

The Episcopal book of common prayer was introduced in evidence as one of the principal pieces of documentary evidence against Dr. Crapsey, as well as a book of his own writings or sermons, published by him under the title "Religion and Politics," but the acceptance of the latter volume as a whole is under consideration.

Utterances from his pulpit in Rochester and in the book submitted to the court are the bases for the charges against Dr. Crapsey. These utterances are alleged to be in violation of the tenets of the Protestant Episcopal faith. There is no dispute as to what Dr. Crapsey said. The question that will be at issue upon the trial is whether his questioned preachings do or do not violate the doctrines of the church.

Disbelief in Church Doctrine.

The presentment against him contains 15 extracts from his book, "Religion and Politics," the charge being that he intentionally expressed disbelief in these doctrines of the church. The divinity of Christ, the conception of the Holy Ghost, the Virgin birth, the bodily resurrection, and the Trinity. A second specification under this first charge is that he made utterances of a like nature as recently as December 31 last with the same intent to deny the same doctrines, as enunciated in the apostles and Nicene creeds.

The second and last charge in the presentment is that Dr. Crapsey violated his ordination vows by failing to conform to the doctrine, discipline and worship of the Protestant Episcopal church.

The truth or falsity of the church's doctrines is not to be argued at the trial. The sole question is whether the things that Dr. Crapsey said are contrary to the church and if he intended them to be understood that Dr. Crapsey's defense will hold that under a liberal interpretation of the creed he has not contradicted its doctrines.

Mr. O'Brien called as his first witness to-day Frederick James Alexander, who was formerly an assistant under Dr. Crapsey in the Rochester church. Mr. Alexander left St. Andrew's on January 20, 1906. He testified to certain remarks made in the pulpit of St. Andrew's by Dr. Crapsey on December 31, 1905, which were in effect that Jesus was born of parents belonging to the middle class, that He was born of a simple father and mother, that He was a son of Joseph, the carpenter, and the fact that the early Christians predicted a miraculous birth to Christ was to be regarded as one of the greatest misfortunes that should ever befall mankind.

Mr. Alexander proved an unwilling witness. Under cross-examination the defense brought out that he had agreed to the rectory of St. Andrew's in succession to Dr. Crapsey, that he had asked for a raise of salary a long time after the publication of "Religion and Politics" and that this increase in emolument was denied shortly before he took the notes on certain portions of Dr. Crapsey's sermon of December 31, which are incorporated in the presentment against Dr. Crapsey.

A letter received at Evansville, Ind., from William Jennings Bryan stated he would speak there about the middle of September. Immediately after the fall election he will sail for Australia.

SOUTHERN VETERANS MEET AT NEW ORLEANS

Men Who Fought for Confederacy Are Enthusiastically Received by Crescent City Citizens.

New Orleans, April 26.—Wednesday, in the heart of a city which has borne the brunt of battle and worn the weeds of mourning for its sake, the confederacy of the south was revived again by those who cherish it for everything that it was intended to be, and who will love it until they die for what it means to them and to the south. The tales of heroism, the sacrifice, the agony and the glory of the great days were told again to those who never weary of the story, and who cheered and wept by turn.

No reunion was ever held under fairer auspices and none ever showed greater promise of success. The weather was perfect, the arrangements of the temporary building erected for the reunion were unsurpassed and the details of the vast work of handling the great throng of visitors was carried out with precision and care.

The first session of the day saw the reunion formally launched upon its career.

Gen. S. D. Lee, the commander-in-chief, Adj. Gen. Mickle and other officers of the organization presented their reports, and Gen. Lee delivered his formal address.

The afternoon was given over to the memory of the confederate dead, and addresses extolling their valor, patriotism and devotion were cheered again and again.

The afternoon session of the reunion was devoted to the glory of the confederate dead, the exercises being entirely of a memorial character. Gen. W. T. Cabell, commander of the trans-Mississippi department, presided in the absence of Gen. S. D. Lee.

After several addresses, and fitting music the presiding officer introduced as the orator of the reunion Judge James B. Gantt, of Jefferson City, Mo., the major general commanding the Missouri division of the Confederate Veterans.

PARIS FEARS MAY DAY WILL BRING DISORDER

Reports That Anarchists Have Secured Bombs Alarms Officials, Who Prepare for Defense.

Paris, April 26.—The strike situation has improved before the government's military and police preparations to crush disorder, and public uneasiness has been considerably relieved.

Alarmist reports, however, continue to circulate concerning what may possibly happen May 1. One report says that Spanish and Swiss anarchists have succeeded in bringing 40 bombs into Paris.

The police are exercising extreme vigilance and are shadowing the chief agitators and watching the centers of disorder.

The elaborate military precautions include stationing 2,000 troops in the basement of the Grand Palace, where the national art salons are being held. Infantry and cavalry are also strongly posted at other important centers.

The places of business of the manufacturing jewelers are heavily guarded. About 1,000 book printers made a manifestation Wednesday, and several minor affairs occurred.

The Metropolitan barbers have announced that they will stop work May 1 unless they are given a holiday, Tuesday and two hours for luncheon and rest.

The labor quarters here show extreme animation. The various sections are holding meetings and are issuing appeals and listening to violent speeches. During a meeting of 5,000 printers two of the orators counseled the stoppage of the delivery wagons of the newspapers.

Reports from the coal mining regions show that there are 40,000 men on strike and 14,000 at work.

RESULTS OF THE BALL GAMES.

Return of Editorial Page.

Madison Journal: No man can be brilliant if he never expresses an opinion. You can't swing a cat in a garret. When all is said, the most conspicuous newspaper successes of this country have been those with brilliant and fearless editorial pages. News is, of course, the all important feature, yet given two papers equally good in the matter of news, the paper with the best editorial page will attract the public. Horace Greeley was the New York Tribune. Samuel Bowles made his Republican published in a small Massachusetts city, a national power. Arthur Brisbane's editorials are not the least of the assets of the Hearst papers. Collier's Weekly gives Norman Hapgood $12,000 a year and lets him live up in Windsor, Vermont, far from the maddening town topics and the swirl of patent medicines. To hear what one man, Elbert Hubbard, has to say, one hundred and twenty thousand people give their dollar, the interest at four per cent on three million dollars. Lately, some New York papers have been discussing the matter of editorials. One paper which had totally abolished them, has restored them. If anyone thinks editorials are never read, let him witness the row that arises when some person of interest is casually stepped on. It then appears that the editorials, reputed unread, unregarded, unwanted, have done unmeasured injury among unnumbered persons. The trend in New York is toward the restoration of the editorial page where it had been dropped, and the restoration of freedom, where this had been curtailed.

In the first issue of his new daily paper, the Georgian, John Temple Graves announces his withdrawal from the race against Senator A. O. Bacon for the United States senate.

A WOMAN'S BACK

The Aches And Pains Will Disappear If The Advice of This Janesville Citizen Is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains. Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault. Backache is really kidney ache. That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it. Many Janesville women know this. Read what one has to say about it.

Mrs. B. F. Jones, of 157 Western Ave., Janesville, Wis., says:

"I was not free from attacks of backache for a single day during several years past, and used so many remedies without getting any relief that I came to the conclusion that nothing would help me and stopped trying. I went about all bent over, could not straighten up at all and had a dull pain across the loins and a feeling of weakness that made it hard for me even to rise from a chair. At night I would awaken with the feeling that a great weight was breaking my back, and anyone who has suffered from kidney trouble will know what torture I endured. Finally I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and wondered if there was really any use of trying another medicine, but seeing them recommended by people in Janesville I got a box at the Peoples Drug Co. and began using them. Gradually I regained strength, and the pains and aches finally disappeared. Since I completed the treatment I have not had an attack of backache nor any symptom of kidney trouble, and I believe Doan's Kidney Pills worthy of all the praise that I can give them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Second Day Of Confederate Soldiers' Reunion At The Crescent City.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New Orleans, La., April 26.—The second day of the confederate reunion opened with an attendance of visitors probably the largest ever entertained in New Orleans. Hotels and boarding houses are filled to overflowing and many private homes have been thrown open for the accommodation of the veterans and their friends. In addition to the usual business sessions held during the day by the confederate veterans and the affiliated organizations there were numerous reunions of regiments, brigades and army corps, together with receptions and other features of entertainment for the women visitors. A notable social function this evening is the reception to be tendered to Mrs. Braxton Bragg by the ladies of the Confederate Memorial association in the palm garden of the St. Charles hotel. The younger set among the visitors are on the tip of expectancy in anticipation of the grand reunion ball tonight.

PRESS COMMENT.

Russians Fully Prepared.
Atlanta Journal: Several ballot boxes were reported to have been stuffed in Russia during the recent elections. Those Russians must be better prepared for popular suffrage than we have been thinking.

Rattle-Brained Soldier.
Racine Journal: The case of the killing of Mr. Tilden of the San Francisco relief committee goes to prove that it requires better judgment to know when not to use a gun than when to pull the trigger.

Now It's The Old Auto.
Indianapolis News: Conditions improve with time and serenity increases. This time ten years ago you were worrying about how you could manage to pay the difference when you traded off your old wheel for the season's model.

Voices Still Intact.
Milwaukee Journal: The Metropolitan grand opera stars who were caught in the San Francisco earthquake got to Chicago yesterday and The Post says they lost all but their voices. This sounds like the naked truth.

Bob's Credentials Now Filled.
Chicago Chronicle: Mr. La Follette has spoken his piece and is now a full-fledged candidate for the presidency. It is to be remembered, however, that other men have made three-day speeches and that few senators reach the white house.

No One Took It Seriously.
Oshkosh Northwestern: It seems that story about an earthquake in upper Michigan last week was mostly "hot air." But of course there are always a few of the yellow correspondents who seem to think that fiction is better than the plain truth.

Naughty Little Mayor Of Richmond.
Boston Transcript: There are but two flags, the state flag of Virginia and the battle flag of the confederacy," says the mayor of Richmond. And his warlike declaration has scared the county almost as much as Castro's threat to invade America via New Orleans.

Missouri Republicans.
St. Louis, Mo., April 26.—Many prominent republicans of this and neighboring states are gathered in St. Louis for the annual convention of the Missouri League of Republican clubs. Public interest centers chiefly in the mass meeting at Music Hall tonight when addresses will be delivered by Secretary Shaw and other party leaders of national prominence. The convention of the league will assemble tomorrow morning and remain in session two days.

The games scheduled for today are: Dayton at Wheeling, Terre Haute at South Bend, Evansville at Grand Rapids, and Springfield at Canton.

The playing season of the Interstate Baseball league (Ohio-Indiana-Michigan), which was originally scheduled to open today, has been postponed to May 3 in order to give several of the clubs more time to get into condition.

To Meet On The Mat.
Chicago, Ill., April 26.—Much interest is manifested in the wrestling contest between Tom Sharkey and John Rooney, the "giant gripman," which is scheduled to take place at the Coliseum tonight. The bout is to be a handicap affair, the conditions being that Rooney must throw Sharkey twice inside of forty-five minutes to win. The men meet for a purse of $1,000 and a side bet of $500.

North Pacific Whist Tourney.
Seattle, Wash., April 26.—The thirteenth annual meeting and tournament of the North Pacific Whist association opened in Seattle today with headquarters at the Hotel Standard. The plan is generally approved by the prominent democrats of the city and will do much towards harmonizing the democratic party of the state.

If We Take the Bit in Our Teeth

It's because we feel sure we are right. We want your trade and will exercise every legitimate effort to get it. The question is not whether you can afford to buy, but whether you can afford NOT to buy of us. If you buy a vehicle of us and are not satisfied, then it's our job and your money would rather lose a sale, or dozens of them, than have anyone leave our doors dissatisfied. It's the come-again customer we want. In our large line of vehicles of all sorts, quality is never sacrificed to meet competing prices. Yet in the truest sense the goods we offer are "bargains." We dislike the word—it has been so much abused—but no other will answer. The choicest selections from hundreds. The assortment is complete, styles are correct. Seeing is believing. Will you come in and look?
